LIVING GENEROUSLY

Frank Donovan and his family are on a journey of generosity with the help of their joyful gardener, Re.

After being convicted of his selfishness, Frank and his family began serving at a local soup kitchen. Frank learned that generosity is much more about a change in your heart than a signature in your checkbook.

Last time Frank's wife, Cassie, was hospitalized after a mugging. Faced with a problem that his money couldn't solve, Frank turned to Re for wisdom and was reminded that the name of the Lord is a strong tower – a rich man's wealth is just an imaginary wall, easily crumbled.

Frank has learned a lot on his journey. Is he ready to take the next step?

Americans are willing to expend some energy in religious activities such as attending church and reading the Bible, and they are willing to throw some money in the offering basket. Because of such activities, they convince themselves that they are people of genuine faith. But when it comes time to truly establishing their priorities and making a tangible commitment to knowing and loving God, and to allowing Him to change their character and lifestyle, most people stop short. We want to be 'spiritual' and we want to have God's favor, but we're not sure we want Him taking control of our lives and messing with the image and outcomes we've worked so hard to produce.
